PHYSICIANS WILL MEET TO CONSIDER NEW LEGISLATION

Vote to Convene in January Because of Menace of Socialized Medicine

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

Meeting Held at Doylestown Was Very Well Attended

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 16.—"Next year the physicians in this county will be confronted with the problem of socialized medicine," Dr. H. P. Feigley, Quakertown, told the Bucks County Medical Society, upon his retirement as president.

Because of this factor it was decided to hold a meeting some time in January, 1935, the date will be determined by the president and the members of the program committee.

Dr. Feigley turned the gavel over to Dr. L. C. Roberts, Wycombe, newly-elected president.

With nearly 70 physicians and surgeons in attendance, the Bucks County Medical Society held its annual Fall meeting at the Fountain House, here, Wednesday afternoon. The members of the society enjoyed a dinner at noon. It was followed by a scientific discussion and business meeting.

Dr. Frederick A. Bothe, staff surgeon of the Presbyterian and Stetson Hospitals, of Philadelphia presented an extremely learned lecture on the various phases of hyperthyroidism which deals with the toxic condition of a patient's whole constitution due to the activity of the thyroid gland. His talk was illustrated with slides showing how the operations were performed.

Dr. L. C. Roberts, of Wycombe, was elected president for next year. Other officers included Dr. H. Doyle Webb, Bristol, first vice president; Dr. C. A. Kressley, Sellersville, second vice president; Dr. Anthony F. Myers, Blooming Glen, secretary-treasurer; Dr. Mary Lehman, Bristol, assistant secretary; board of censors, Dr. J. A. Weierback, Quakertown; Dr. W. C. LeCompte, Bristol, and Dr. H. T. Crough, this place; Dr. Otto H. Strouse, of Perkasie, editor; Dr. Mary Lehman, of Bristol, reporter for the Penna. State Medical Association; Dr. Allen H. Moore, of this place; Dr. Frank Lehman, of Bristol, and Dr. Clyde R. Flory, Sellersville, public relations committee; Dr. Fred Wagner, Bristol, Dr. Herbert T. Crough, Doylestown, and Dr. Clyde Flory, Sellersville, Emergency Child Health Committee.

Representing the Bucks County Public Health Association, Dr. Fred Wagner said the object of the association was to secure the co-operation of all the county physicians, health workers, nurses and members of the laity so as not to cause an overlapping of health work and activities in the county. The secretary-treasurer, Dr. Myers, reported a balance of $152.25 on hand. He also reported that the membership of the society is composed of 61 physicians, three of whom have not paid their dues.

The society formally took action to send a letter of condolence to the widow of Dr. M. E. Weaver, of Perkasie, who passed away at his home recently. Dr. Weaver was a former member of the society.

Dr. Frank Lehman reported that the physicians were able to secure packages of toxoid before leaving for their homes. He urged that children be administered toxoid before they were six months old and still under the care of a family physician.

Dr. Claude L. Taylor, of this place; Dr. Fred Wagner, of Bristol, and Dr. William G. Moyer, of Quakertown, were appointed members of the program committee by President Roberts.

Guests included the Rev. Herbert Agate, pastor of the Hathboro Baptist Church who was a guest of Dr. John B. Carrell, of Hathboro; Dr. Roscoe Teahan, of Jeane Hospital, of Fox Chase, and Dr. Wood, a member of the Montgomery County Medical Society and the Lehigh Valley Medical Association of which Past President Feigley is a vice-president.

BOOTLEG COAL COST AVERAGES $13 A TON

Philadelphia Official Arrives At Figure by Considering Short Weights

SUMMARIZES FACTS

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16.—Bootleg coal of poor quality is costing Philadelphians an average of $13 a ton.

Edwin C. Enhardt, supervisor of the Bureau of Weights and Measures, made that disclosure in summarizing the results of his first six months in office.

"Tracking in of bootleg coal from sources outside of Philadelphia has been increasing at a rapid rate," he said. "It is a serious charge to say any business deliberately plans to defraud the public, but in the business of trucking bootleg coal there is evidence that certain men are doing just that."

"Various up-State truckers are boasting of the amount of coal out of which Philadelphia has been cheated. The extent to which short weight has entered into this business is almost unbelievable. Instances of short-ages running higher than 50 per cent. "In the numerous instances where such coal deliveries have been reweighed by the bureau's inspectors no case has been found where full weight has been delivered. Reweighing of the coal shows that the purchaser has been paying $13 a ton for unscreened poor quality coal."

Enhardt has set up a coal exhibit in the corridor outside the bureau offices. It attracts 200 or more persons daily. It shows various types of good coal and slag-loaded bargains.

The following list of short-weight bootleg deliveries made over a two-week survey, was made public by Enhardt:

FLOOD OF ORDERS PROMISED WITH U. S. S. R. RECOGNITION FAILS TO FLOW; RED BUYING IN U. S. DECLINES, WITH CREDITS BLAMED

Once Busy Purchasing Office In New York Now Nearly Idle

By George H. Kennedy, Jr.
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
(Copyright, 1934, I. N. S.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(INS)—Amtorg, the corporation which does the trading between the Soviet Union and the United States is operating today with nearly empty offices and a depleted staff. Bogdanov, its chairman, has gone home for good.

And tomorrow is the first anniversary of America's recognition of Russia for which high hopes of a trade revival were held.

In the Amtorg offices in lower Fifth Avenue an entire floor which three years ago, without the stimulant of diplomatic recognition, was bustling with activity, is almost unused today.

Amtorg then had about 500 employees. Today it has one-third that number.

Soviet Russian purchases in the United States once were more than $100,000,000 a year. This year they will do well to reach $15,000,000.

There is another reason beside the depression, a reason that is well known at Amtorg, in Washington and in Moscow. Recognition improved only the political relations between the two countries. The economic relations were left for subsequent negotiations and the negotiations have got nowhere.

This stagnant trade condition exists in spite of the fact that Russia especially needs heavy industry goods, the division in America's recovery program that most needs stimulation.

For instance, as it was explained at Amtorg today, the Soviet union is in great need of rolling mill equipment. Its blast and open hearth furnaces now can produce far more ingot steel than its rolling mills can process.

Russia is in the need of reducing equipment for its gold and platinum ores. The U. S. S. R. recently has become the second gold producing country in the world, ahead of Canada and the United States and second only to South America. It even sent gold ores here by shipload for reduction. But the gold has not markedly increased Russian purchases in America.

Russia also is in the market for all kinds of producing machinery, but failing in obtaining credits Moscow now is negotiating with foreign patent holders and building the machinery herself. Amtorg officials said.

Russia is probably the only country in the world constructing railroads today. Developments in this country such as the new stream-lined light-weight trains are being watched with great interest. Automotive, aero and transport equipment now total more than half of Amtorg's purchases here.

Maxim Litvinoff, Russia's foreign commissar, said at Geneva that his country was in the market for one thousand million dollars worth of goods—if it got the credits. Later in America he said that this country's

EXPLOSION HURLS THREE MEN THROUGH DOOR

All Escape With Shaking Up At Morrisville Service Station

CAUSE NOT KNOWN

MORRISVILLE, Nov. 16.—Three men narrowly escaped serious injury early last night when a mysterious explosion hurled them through the door of the service station of Fred W. Lake, South Pennsylvania and Philadelphia avenues, and caused considerable damage to the building. The victims were Lake, James Jamison, of 279 Norway avenue, Trenton, and Leon W. Mount, of Baker's Basin.

Lake and Jamison, a customer, were standing at the center, while Mount, who is employed as a driver for the Gulf Refining Company, had completed filling the underground gasoline tanks and was just entering the building when the explosion occurred. The three men were hurled through the open door but escaped with a shaking up.

Four large plate glass windows, panes in four smaller windows and the glass of the front door were shattered by the explosion. A radiator was torn loose, the counter was overturned, and automobile accessories were tossed from the shelves. The blast was heard for some distance and a crowd soon gathered at the scene.

It was believed that the building was on fire and an alarm was given. Members of the Union and Capitol View Fire companies rushed to the scene, but their services were not needed. Firemen and State Police made an investigation, but until early today were unable to determine the cause of the explosion. The gasoline tanks were found to be intact and a further examination will be made today to learn if the trouble was due to the heating system. The damage is estimated at more than $200.

DID THE RADIATOR FREEZE?

(By "The Stroller")
Then there's the story of the Humeville motorist who purchased one gallon of expensive anti-freeze liquid and poured it in his gasoline tank!

Believe it or not, it's true. It happened Wednesday evening when the temperature dropped considerably, and the wind blew.

Walking to a nearby service station the man made his purchase, went to his garage and started pouring out the contents of the can. He then went to bed, with mind content that his car was safe from the freezing weather.

The "flivver" wouldn't start yesterday morning, and investigation showed that the anti-freeze compound had been placed in the gasoline tank.

FEAR FOR RICE'S SAFETY

Grand Central Airport, Burbank, Cal., Nov. 16.—Fear was expressed at the P. W. A. operations office here today for the safety of George Rice, veteran pilot flying a mail plane enroute here from Albuquerque, New Mexico, who has been missing since 5.30 p. m. yesterday. The plane was last reported from Kingman, Arizona at 5.30 p. m. and was due to have arrived here at 8.30 p. m.

READY FOR STRATOSPHERE

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 16.—Plane and equipment were ready for the projected flight of Wiley Post, famous globe-girdling aviator into the stratosphere in an attempt to better the present world altitude record of 47,750 feet for heavier-than-aircraft. Post first planned to take off from Curtiss-Reynolds airport in his world-circling plane, Winnie Mae, at 8 a. m., but the take-off was delayed a few hours. In tests conducted in his super-charged plane and super-charged flying suit, Post has attained an unofficial altitude of 49,000 feet.

TO CONSIDER NEW CAMPAIGN

New York City, Nov. 16.—Virtually certain she has suffered a crushing defeat in her bitter fight for custody of her child, Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt was to confer with her attorneys today on a relentless campaign in the higher courts to upset the expected verdict. While no official word of the decision of the savagely fought case was forthcoming, it seems almost assured that Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, aunt of the little $2,800,000 heiress, would have custody of the child until she is 14 and that the mother would be permitted to have her only on week-ends. Informed of the imminence of this arrangement, Mrs. Vanderbilt, pale and indignant, told an intimate friend: "I shall repudiate any decision of that kind; I shall take the matter to the highest court. Mrs. Whitney shall not be permitted to keep my child."

"KINGFISH" ON WARPATH

Baton Rouge, Louisiana, Nov. 16.—United States Senator Huey P. "Kingfish" Long, wrathfully censured the Reville student publication of Louisiana State University today for printing an open letter criticizing his attempt to use Abe Mickal, star half-back in a "barbarous of representative government." By order of the Kingfish, the presses were stopped and all printed copies of the student daily destroyed. Senator Long was shown a copy of the publication just before the Senate adjourned. He snorted: "This is my university and I'll throw anybody out who utters a word against me."

TALK 'BOOKS AND PEOPLE' ENJOYED BY SOROSIS

The speaker for the meeting was Miss M. Bates, head librarian of the Hunts Point Library Branch of the New York Library. Her topic was "Books and People." Miss Bates told of the many types of people who patronize the library which she heads, and of the variety of choices of books, as shown particularly by those of different denominations. She spoke in high terms of the type of books chosen by the members of the Jewish race, mentioning that the Jews are most desirous that their children receive fine educations.

The presiding officer at yesterday's session was the president, Mrs. Lynn J. Harrington. During the business meeting announcement was made of a meeting of the American Home Section of which Mrs. Paul B. Bennet is chairman, on November 20th. ## UNEMPLOYMENT REPORT SEVEN MONTHS AGO

Statistics Given as Result of Survey Made by LWD Workers

COUNTY AVERAGE 19.9

Last April 131 white collar L. W. D. workers canvassed 16,901 households in Bucks county, collecting employment statistics for the State Relief Board. The results of that survey were made public this week in Harrisburg by Emmett H. Welch, director of the division of research and statistics.

Bristol led the county in both the number of jobless and percentage of employables out of work, according to the survey. While in the county as a whole there were 5478 persons unemployed—19.9 per cent. of the employables, the borough of Bristol had 1761 unemployed, 36.5 per cent. of its 4826 employables. Bristol, however, is by far the largest industrial center in the county.

Bristol had 945 workers employed only part time, or 19.6 per cent. of the employables, while in the county as a whole 47.1 per cent. were at work part time.

The employment was best in Sellersville, where only 6.7 per cent. of the workers were jobless. Chalfont had 7.3 per cent. unemployed and Perkasie 7.6.

Among the commodities turned out in Bucks mills are silk hosiery, men's clothing, woollens and worsteds, shirts and processed leather. There is considerable agriculture, with wide-

King George Urges That Naval Agreement Be Reached

By H. K. Reynolds
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Nov. 16.—(INS)—Issuing a personal appeal to Japan, America and Britain to reach a naval agreement to prevent "unrestricted competition in naval armaments," King George today prorogued parliament with a vigorous speech.

Events that threatened European peace also were touched upon in a striking reference to recent assassinations of high personages.

"Representatives of my government are at present engaged in preliminary discussions with representatives of the governments of the United States and Japan in preparation for the Naval Conference due next year," said the King's speech, which was read by a member of a Royal commission before the House of Lords.

"It is my earnest hope that their efforts will be attended by success, in order that the world may be spared the evil of unrestricted competition in naval armaments, so effectively averted in recent years by international engagements freely entered into by the parties concerned."

The address opened with straight-forward recognition of the perilous situation on the European continent.

"The murder of the Austrian chancellor in July and the assassinations of the King of Yugoslavia and French Foreign Minister in October profoundly shocked the world and evoked the deep sympathy of myself and all my people."

"These tragedies undoubtedly seriously set back the movements then afoot for European appeasement, and I have therefore noted with satisfaction the untiring efforts of my government to counsel moderation and to promote more friendly relations between nations."

As for Britain's domestic affairs, the King also "noted with satisfaction" Britain's improvement in trade "notwithstanding the difficult international conditions."

The King will open the new session of parliament in person next week after a state procession from Buckingham palace.

FORMER RESIDENT DROWNS IN N. Y.; TWO RESCUED HERE

Thaddeus Farley, 72, Found Drowned in Brooklyn Yesterday

PULL TWO OUT OF RIVER

David Swangler and Son, Arthur, Rescued From River at Burlington

A former Bristol man was found drowned yesterday and two other men from here narrowly escaped drowning this morning.

Drowned:
Thaddeus Farley, 72, Brooklyn, N. Y. Rescued:
David Swangler and his son, Arthur, both of Bristol.

Farley was found drowned in Brooklyn, N. Y., yesterday. Details of the accident were not available here today.

Mr. Farley resided here until last July when he moved to Brooklyn. He was the brother of Elizabeth J. Farley, Philadelphia; Mary M. Farley, Bristol; Mrs. Arthur Fournier, Miami, Florida, and the late Mrs. John J. Killoyne, Bristol.

This morning David Swangler and his son, Arthur, fell into the Delaware river at Burlington, N. J., while attempting to get into a boat. Both men suffered from shock when they fell into the cold water and they were rescued by Jack Lesley, employed with one of the dredges engaged in deepening the river channel.

The Swanglers were taken aboard one of the boats connected with the dredge where they were given a change of clothing and apparently had not suffered any ill effects.

First Presentation of "Happy Landings" Occurs

The first presentation of the High School play, "Happy Landings," was well received by the large audience which attended it last night. The second and final performance will be given tonight in the High School auditorium.

The play was well presented and the entire cast took their parts exceptionally well. Lillian Dries, who played the part of Juliet, the colored maid, created much amusement with her laugh-provoking antics, as did Howard Baker, taking the comedy role opposite her. Ernest Orzi gave an exceptionally fine performance as Skofsky, the jealous, raving Bolshevik. Harley Davies' portrayal of a timid, scholarly professor, and Margaret Collier's presentation as Fifi, a French actress who followed him from Paris, were especially very clever. Charlotte Abbott's and Winifred Flynn's enactment of the roles of the Misses Sabrina and Busby, of the Ladies' Progressive Literary Society, afforded a great deal of amusement.

Other members of the talented cast who did outstanding work were: Walter Fagan, as Michael Pemberton, the aviator; Loretta Clay, as Barbara Stackpole; Genevieve Cherubini and Johnson Orr as Mr. and Mrs. Stackpole; and Franklin Silber as Spotty, the mechanic.

The play will be repeated tonight at 8.15 in the high school auditorium.

Book Week Observed By The Cornwells P. T. A.

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Nov. 16.—Book Week was observed at the meeting of the Cornwells Parent-Teacher Association, in the Bensalem Township high school auditorium, last evening.

The presiding officer was the president, Mrs. Roscoe Perkins. Transaction of business preceded the program. A report of the Bucks County Council convention which occurred at Jamison, was given by Mrs. J. Lamb, of Trevoise.

A decision was reached to purchase some new books for the school library, in observance of book week. Plans were also completed for a card party on Friday evening, December 7th, at the school building here. The attendance banner and prize were awarded to students of Miss Patterson's room, who had the largest representation of parents present.

Miss Emily Schroeder, school librarian, gave an account of the school library and books therein.

Several high school students presented a pantomime portraying characters in well-known books, this being under direction of Miss Jane Kohler. A motion picture, "Books from Manuscript to Pressroom" was much enjoyed.

Special music and recitations were followed by refreshments and a social time.

SCIENTIFIC EXPLORER

Admiral Richard E. Byrd is a born explorer, but he is more than that. As an explorer his interest is principally scientific. Strange places are more than just strange places to him.

When Byrd flew over the poles he was not stunt flying, but making a scientific study of the great wastes at the top and the bottoms of this sphere. He wanted to know their potential value to humanity, the connection between arctic and anti-arctic cold and atmospheric conditions in the other zones, and the possibility of air routes between the continents.

His inspired spirit was inspired by the desire to place a part of his vast expanse upon the map of the known world and to determine whether it is a continent. He would map, probe and learn.

In the history of exploration there have been many motives to urge men to reach remote places. Explorers have gone in search of new and better trade routes, treasure, new colonies or merely for the honor of being the first to discover the unknown. This age has produced a new type in the form of the scientific explorer of which Admiral Byrd is the most famous.

There are still vast blank spaces on the map of the world but thanks to cartographers of Byrd's type they are rapidly shrinking. It has taken man many times six days to bring his globe to its present stage of completion.

SYNTHETIC EDUCATION

The prophecy that some day everything will be served to mankind out of a mail bag never seemed near realization until the correspondence course began to make its big popular favor. There were those who imagined that there was nothing new under the sun until the correspondence school began to thrive.

Now a synthetic liberal arts education is little short of possible. Detectives were once the chief product of the correspondence school, but now these schools have come up in the world. The searcher after knowledge can learn to be an engineer, linguist, accountant, lawyer, orator, author, musician, artist or—well, all that's necessary is to name your favorite "profession" and presto, it is yours.

Education and "higher" training are not the only things that may be obtained via the postage stamp. More recently folks were offered long life and perfect health in twelve easy exercises taken to the rhythm of a phonograph record. Diet courses are likewise available and find a ready market due to the fact that the average man is a fat figure.

A correspondence school accountant has figured that the number of cultural mail courses now being advertised in current periodicals indicates that one person must have been the author of two or three courses.

But why not education, health and culture in synthetic form, if synthetic food is to be the future diet?

If only the salesman would call regularly after you buy the thing and keep you thinking it a wonder.

You can tell those who have been broadened by travel. They know how to pronounce "visa."

"BEACH BEAUTY" by ARTHUR SHUMWAY

SYNOPSIS

Kay Owen, pretty Daytona Beach girl, finds a luxurious yacht, "Commander III," in her mooring place when she goes to dock her small motor launch. Inquiry reveals that the yacht belongs to Earl Harrow, noted theatrical producer. Kay is thrilled for she is the star of the local Community Players' amateur production, "Private Lives," and longs for a stage career. From the deckhouse, Harrow admires Kay's beauty. He attends a performance of "Private Lives" with his press agent and body-guard, "Spike" Winch. Harrow is pleasantly surprised to find Kay playing the lead. After the show, he suggests that Kay study acting seriously, but she explains financial reverses necessitate her remaining in Florida to work and help support her mother. Harrow offers her a secretarial position during his stay in Daytona, adding they could discuss her acting later as he would like to help her from a purely artistic standpoint.

CHAPTER III

Harrow rose with easy grace and an easy smile. "I'll run along now and leave you to your friends." He started toward the door, but stopped and turned. "Oh, by the way," he said. "I nearly forgot. Didn't I see you down at the dock today?"

"Yes, and I saw you. I'd just brought my boat down from the boat yard. I'd had it up there during the storm."

"Well, it was the storm that brought me here. You've a boat, you say?"

"Yes, after a fashion. That was it in front of yours—the little Kayo."

"It was?"

"Yes—I was going to be peeved until I found out who you were."

"Peeved? At me?"

"Oh, it wasn't your fault. Your skinner tied up in my place."

Harrow laughed. "We'll have to fix that. So you like boats, too, do you, Miss Owen?"

"I love them. Maybe it's what's the trouble with me."

"Would you like to ride over tonight, then, and take a look at mine? Have a bite and a nip, too? You must be hungry after a show. Most actors are."

Kay Owen thought quickly. She'd like nothing better than to go to Harrow's yacht, but there was dear old jealous Pete sulking outside in his 1928 diver.

"I'm sorry," she said. "There's someone waiting for me."

"Very well. But bring him along, too. Anyone you wish."

"I didn't say it was a him," she said.

"Her then," Harrow said, smiling. "It is a him, though. I just wondered how you knew."

Harrow looked at her appreciatively. "You can ask that," he said, shaking his head.

"Excuse me, then, and I'll tell him."

She picked up her bag, snatched her hat from the shelf and hurried out the side exit. She found Pete waiting in front in the diver. Nearly everyone else had gone.

"Pete," she said, excitedly. "He's nice. Look, he wants to see you, too."

"What's he want to see me for?"

"He wants us to come over and have something to eat on his boat. You see, it's that huge, big white one, Commander III."

"Sure I saw it," Pete said. "But I doubt if he wants me so much he'll burst into tears if I don't show up. But don't let that stop you. You can do just as you like. It's up to you to see anyway."

"I don't like Pete. He's going to give me a job and says he wants to help me."

"Oh, course, of course," Pete said bitterly.

"Oh, even being a fish. That's the trouble with you; you can't learn to separate art and sex. Even when Dick Potter wrestled around with me in rehearsals for the show you were sitting out there gawking your head off."

"That's something you wouldn't know anything about," Pete said. "Never having been in love."

"I'm sorry, Pete," she said, touching his arm which was thick and hard under the white linen. "But he's not so silly. You can come. It won't hurt you."

"No thank you," he said.

"Kay said there a minute and was between the two choices. Then she made up her mind."

"All right," she said. "I'll see you at the beach tomorrow."

She hurried in to the theater leaving Pete sitting glumly in his car. She heard the groan of its starter as she went inside. Poor Pete! He was a problem, so jealous and so damned decent and worth while. He ought to know better than to be jealous of Earl Harrow. He, Pete, was her kind of people. His father had died that Summer, making it impossible for him to return to the university to finish his engineering course, and he was working now as a lifeguard on the beach, biding his time and hoping patiently to marry her when he was out of school and able to support her.

She found Earl Harrow and Spike Winch waiting with the director of the Players and Ida Campbell. Ida was playing up to Harrow for all she was worth. Just for fun, Kay thought, we ought to make this a contest. She knew very well that Ida was envious of her and really disliked her because of her success with the Players. Ida used to play most of the leads. Immediately Kay forgot Pete and his woes as the party—they were all coming—started for Harrow's big rented car.

And once on the Commander III, warmed by two highballs of excellent Scotch, Kay was very far from thinking of Pete. She was very far from thinking at all. It seemed as if life suddenly had opened for her with a happiness that was bewildering.

Earl Harrow was the most fascinating man Kay Owen ever had seen. She was sure of it that night on his yacht, Commander III. Nor was it surprising. Many a girl had said much the same thing, in New York, Palm Beach, Havana, Paris, Biarritz, Cannes. It wasn't his looks, for his languor, his appearance of being always just a night or two behind his sleep, prevented him from being strikingly handsome. It wasn't his manner, nor the money he spent, though of course no woman held either the one or the other against him. More than any one of these things, probably, it was that. It's just that he—like me a lot, I guess, and sometimes he's sort of shy."

"Well, I just hope we haven't offended him. I hope he didn't get the feeling that we didn't want him."

"I'm sure he didn't," Kay said quickly.

"Does he like to fish?" Harrow asked.

"Why—yes, he loves to."

"Do you?"

"I'd spend half my time at it if I could."

"Then we'll have to try it in a day or so. I think a little fishing is just what I need. Never have tried it in this part of the country, you know. I've fished a little off Key West and I've caught a swordfish or two in the South Seas, and muskies in Canada and salmon in Scotland, but I haven't had a rod in my hand in over a year now. I'd like nothing better. What do you say? This week sometime?"

"I'd love to, Mr. Harrow."

"And—the young man? Pete, isn't he? Do you think you could induce him to come?"

"I think so," she said, but she wasn't too sure.

"Good. I'll leave the arrangements to you. You probably know these waters. And you'll know the best guide to get."

"We won't need a guide, Mr. Harrow. That is, if you don't mind. I can take you to the fish."

"Good! Good! I can see already that our expedition is going to be a real success."

HOLLYWOOD. . . —The death of Helen McCarthy, known as "Apple Annie", in New York, recalls to Max Robson the hours she spent with this unusual character when Columbia made her.

May spent part of one day with "Apple Annie" in New York. The studio had given the old lady a necklace of which she was very proud. May asked her what she was going to do with it.

"Do you want it?" asked the woman.

May said no.
"Well, then, I'm going to sell it," replied Helen McCarthy, who knew that glory was brief and that money meant three meals a day.

"Apple Annie's" shrewdness was proved once more that day. The studio hired her an expensive limousine and told her she could drive wherever she wanted.
Helen McCarthy turned to May. "Tell him to drive to the alley where I have my apple-stand," she said. "I want to see if my husband is on the job."

Now, you TOO can dance the continental.

Dave Gould, who created both the carioaca and the continental for the R-K-O studio, will make a series of short-subjects illustrating the steps of the two dance hits of the year.

Like the Bobby Jones golf series, the dance films will combine instruction with entertainment, illustrating correct and incorrect postures and highlighting the mistakes of the ordinary ballroom twirler.

Gould stands to be a trifle prejudiced but he insists that the film fan is dance-conscious as never before.

"Fred Astaire's dancing feet have given the Gables and the Marches something to think about," says the terpsichorean expert. "Without meeting any of the accepted movie standards of a box-office Adonis, he has become the most discussed new star of Hollywood. And the reason is his dancing."

The Gould series, which also will include the fox-trot, the tango and the waltz, will be written by Troy Orr, local advertising man.

What well-known actress caused such a disturbance at her sister's house the other evening that radio ops had to carry her to the station house, where she remained in the sergeant's office for half an hour until her husband, an out-of-door star, came and picked her up?

Though a bit overawed by the impressive stables that will race at the Santa Anita track come Christmas, the film colony will not be without representation.

John Cromwell plans to enter a horse that he is importing from Ireland. It will race under the name of "Hidden Valley". Called after the film director's ranch, Cromwell also is bringing over an English jumper named "Begonia". This one will be retitled.

For several months, the director will back it at his new ranch house. Kay Johnson remains in New York for a stage show, but plans to be in Hollywood soon after the first of the year.

Even in Spain, the land of romance, there are practical lovers. A gentleman from Barcelona writes Mona Barrie this proposal:

"I am a carpet importer. I will give you the most beautiful carpets in the world if you will marry me. I already have a wife, but that can be disposed of."

KNICK-KNACKS—

Don't be surprised if Barbara Woods clones to Yuma any day now with an Osage Indian, who is a pilot instructor at the airport where her father works. . . . Maureen O'Sullivan will take her dad to Texas when she goes there next week on location with the Peery company.

David Manners is a-dither. Dick Simon, of Simon and Schuster, read his partly completed novel, and wants to publish it, as well as David's diary of his recent automobile tour across the country. . . . It will take Max Baer two days in the gymnasium to get back into shape after one of Carl Brisson's Danish dinners. Judith Allen was there, too.

A nice gesture by John Gales. Through his intervention, 75 nurses, recovering from infantile paralysis, will get a special showing of Jesse Lasky's "The White Parade".

And Hollywood is welcoming the Irving Berlin and the Buster Keatons, new arrivals from the east.

Indo-Vin Ends Many Forms Of Health Trouble

New Medicine Mixes With Sufferer's Food and Goes to Very Source of Common Ailments; A "Blessing" to Those Afflicted With Stomach Trouble, Weak Kidneys, Nervousness and General Rundown Condition.

G. H. Mosby
Originator of Indo-Vin

Men and women in all walks of life are visiting The Victor Cut Rate Store, 303 Mill Street, in Bristol, to find out about the new, scientific medicine, called Indo-Vin, which mixes with the sufferer's own food and is helping people in this vicinity who had NEVER BEEN really helped before by ANY medicine.

How It Acts:

Taken shortly after meals, Indo-Vin works with the food in one's stomach, thus throwing off the poisons that foster stomach troubles and permitting the liver and kidneys to function properly. It contains a combination of 22 medicinal extracts from natural plants found in no other known formula. By helping Nature, it is vastly more effective than previously known medicines and goes to the very source of common ailments. It has astounded druggists and public alike here in Bristol and hundreds claim it has been a "blessing" to their health.

Actual Cases:

"One of the first cases for which Indo-Vin was used was kidney trouble—getting up frequently at nights. The man who took it came back the third day and said he had slept all through the previous night. We learned afterward that he had been doctoring over ten years for his trouble. In another case a man was crippled with rheumatism and de-raanged kidneys. He hadn't left the vicinity of his home for two years. He completed a few weeks' treatment with Indo-Vin and said he walked a distance of nearly a mile. This, of course, was three weeks after he completed the treatment. Thus, it was determined that Indo-Vin should do wonders for neuritis, and one lady who had tried nearly everything for this affliction said that five bottles of Indo-Vin had completely ended every ache and pain. She had previously taken mineral baths, electric treatments and medicine upon medicine without relief. All of these are actual cases and can be verified.

"Another woman was treated with Indo-Vin for stomach trouble. She said in five years she had spent several thousand dollars trying to regain her health. She had been in bed three days out of five, but shortly after she started with Indo-Vin she could eat heartily of many things she hadn't dared to eat before. Her food agreed with her and she continued with Indo-Vin about six weeks. She came back and said she felt ten years younger, and her appearance certainly showed it. One lady stated the medicine did her more good than two years of special dieting; she took Indo-Vin for nervousness and general rundown condition."

When Indo-Vin is taken into the human system, each of its natural extracts has a certain duty to perform on the functional organs (stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels) and the cleansing and invigorating of these organs is what brings such amazing relief and new feeling of health.

While it is being introduced in Bristol, every suffering person can take this medicine at the small cost of only a few cents a day, for it is not expensive.

Indo-Vin is now being sold here in Bristol at the Victor Cut Rate Store at 303 Mill Street. (Advertisement.)

So far, it is shown by the purchases being made by Amtorg and Amtorg is the purchasing agent for the entire Soviet Union in America, this country is getting very little of the business of the U. S. S. R. The promised flood of orders which was the prime argument of American proponents of recognition has failed to materialize.

WINTER GARDENING IN A COLD FRAME

Those who have cold frames—and every gardener should have one—may provide themselves with plants of unusual interest and beauty and excellent material for early spring cutting by planting the poppy anemones, known botanically as Anemone coronaria. The finest strain available is of Irish origin, and known as the St.

Brigid anemone. It comes in double, semi-double and single form.

These anemones grow from peculiarly dried up looking tubers, which should be planted in cold frames, as they are not completely hardy, but winter easily in a frame and start blooming early in April. The main difficulty is in determining which is the top of the tuber. It is indicated by a slight depression with a few points in it. Another method is to look for the old roots which still may cling to the tuber on the under side.

The anemones want rich soil. Give them a liberal application of pulverized sheep manure when planting and put them about two inches under ground. If in doubt as to the top of the tuber, plant it edgewise.

They have foliage resembling parsley, from which numerous stems arise to a height of about a foot, bearing flowers two to three inches in diameter in various shades of scarlet, blue and rose with central contrasting coloring. They last well when cut. They are of very easy culture.

The Mariposa tulips, the butterfly and globe tulips of California, may be grown in a frame very easily and bloom in late May. Their markings are unusual on white, yellow or lavender grounds, resembling the eyes on butterfly wings. Plant them two inches deep. They sometimes winter outside with a mulch of leaves, but are short lived under these conditions, while they thrive in a cold frame.

The gorgeous ranunculus may also be grown in a frame giving giant double buttercups in orange, scarlet and yellow. These are a cluster of pointed tubers to be pressed into the soil with the claws down on a bed of sand and about two inches deep. They are not as reliable as the anemones, but well worth the trouble. A cold frame stocked with these plants will yield an amazing display of color in early spring, lasting until about the first of June. They need considerable moisture and the frame should not be allowed to dry out.

BIDDLE ON LABOR BOARD

Philadelphia, Nov. 16—Francis Biddle, noted Philadelphia attorney, today announced he had accepted President Roosevelt's appointment as chairman of the National Labor Relations Board. Biddle told International News Service he received notification of the appointment late yesterday in a telephone call from Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor. "I talked with Miss Perkins late yesterday," Biddle said, "and I immediately accepted the appointment as chairman of the National Labor Relations Board." Biddle will succeed Lloyd W. Garrison, of the University of Wisconsin, who recently resigned from the post of board chairman to resume his professional duties at the midwestern college.

HOLD TWO FOR KIDNAPPING

New York City, Nov. 16—Two men were held today in connection with the kidnapping of Louis Esposito, 23 year old son of a well-to-do Bronx junk dealer, and details of an alleged installment ransom deal were made public. The men held are John Manfredonia, 22, and his brother, Richard, 27, both of the Bronx. The men, police declared, had just received a $500 payment from the Esposito family before their arrest. Detectives said young Esposito was kidnapped October 15th and had been released after his family had paid $1,000 to his abductors and had promised to pay the remainder of the $5000 asked "in ten easy payments."

KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

TEA IS IMPORTANT FUNCTION AFTER A DAY OF SUNNING

By Nadia de Beaud

PARIS — (INS) — Tea is a most important function on the Riviera, for it comes after a day's heavy sunning, when the fatigue of too much air and of the salt water has relaxed the body. Most prefer then to put aside the pyjama for a cool sport dress. On the terrace of hotels along the Croisette at Cannes, this hour is "sacred," especially among the English visitors. Some tea rooms have been opened out of town, giving the seeker of refreshments an opportunity of a little walk in the cool air at the end of a hot day.

Mlle. Jose Laval, who went to the White House with her father, the French foreign minister, had a sky blue linen suit at the Carlton, which was very cool looking and neat. The skirt had stitched gores with a jacket fitting at the waist, with revers and pockets.

The Baroness Antonia de Rothschild wore a navy blue hand knitted suit, whereas Mme. Paul Dupuy had a white linen jersey ensemble, buttoning on one side with the pockets over the skirt.

PARIS — (INS) — Tea is a most important function on the Riviera, for it comes after a day's heavy sunning, when the fatigue of too much air and of the salt water has relaxed the body. Most prefer then to put aside the pyjama for a cool sport dress. On the terrace of hotels along the Croisette at Cannes, this hour is "sacred," especially among the English visitors. Some tea rooms have been opened out of town, giving the seeker of refreshments an opportunity of a little walk in the cool air at the end of a hot day.

Mlle. Jose Laval, who went to the White House with her father, the French foreign minister, had a sky blue linen suit at the Carlton, which was very cool looking and neat. The skirt had stitched gores with a jacket fitting at the waist, with revers and pockets.

The Baroness Antonia de Rothschild wore a navy blue hand knitted suit, whereas Mme. Paul Dupuy had a white linen jersey ensemble, buttoning on one side with the pockets over the skirt.

d'Or is a picturesque hotel, renowned for its kitchen, easily situated on the hill at Saint Paul, one of these mediaeval villages such as have made the charm of the Riviera world famous. Among the Americans who spent the season here was Nadia, the Oriental dancer. People often motor out there for dinner, later going to the theatrical performance given by HOLLYWOOD. . . . — Dancer Charles Barron gave Sally Blane the scare of her life when he was taking her home from a gay evening and took a sip of iodine by mistake. Published reports said he was reaching for a bottle of mouth wash in the pocket of his car. Actually, it was one of those two-drink bottles of whiskey.

The funny part of it is nobody would have heard anything about it if Sally hadn't leaped out of the car and rushed to a neighboring drug store for help. Barron tried to explain that he hadn't swallowed any of the caustic poison, but Sally, poor girl, was in a panic.

All in all, it was a hectic finish for an evening which started out to be a pleasant party at the Beverly Wilshire. Gold room, favored Sunday meeting place of the stars. There, at a ringside table, Sally and Barron and Tommy Lee and Barron's dancing partner, Joan Blair, had spent a number of hours listening to Vincent Lopez playing. Joan Blair and Tommy Lee left first and Sally and Barron soon followed. The accident occurred a few minutes later and caused plenty of excitement at the corner drug store, especially when Sally burst into tears.

No doubt about it, Sue Carol and Nick Stuart are Hollywood's friendliest ex-mates. With help from Agent Ben Jackson, a deal is being made for Sue to become an entertainer in Nick's new 14-piece band. She'll probably break in with the orchestra at the Palomar club, where Nick is playing now, and will stay on as a regular member on a proposed tour of the coast.

All unconscious of taking a screen test, some Los Angeles girl is going to dance herself into the movies. For her, the road to Hollywood recognition—so long to the usual film aspirant—will be shortened to a few dance steps. And the reward will be a featured part opposite Carl Brisson in "All the King's Horses."

The Danish star thought up this extraordinary idea and has sold Paramount on letting him try it.

He will visit many dance places in Los Angeles and Hollywood, not only the expensive rendezvous of the film stars, but even the taxi dance halls. He will be seeking a girl with zodiac looks, charm, grace and a natural aptitude for ballroom dancing.

When he finds her, he will ask an introduction and this lucky Cinderella will be offered a chance to become his dance partner in his new Paramount film.

Brisson says the search is strictly on the level, so get on your party dresses, girls, and dance your prettiest.

Topping Groucho Marx is no small feat, but if you can believe the comedian, his 13-year-old son, Arthur, did it.

The kid was showing papa how he could dive in the family swimming pool. After one try, which was slightly sour, Groucho asked:

"What kind of a dive was that?"

"A swan dive," said Arthur.

"Well, it was a hum swan dive," kidded Groucho. The kid tumbled leisurely out of the pool.

"Okay," he said, "let the swan sue me."

What was the strange and hilarious mission on which Robert Montgomery sent two Los Angeles detectives to the home of his stand-in, Red Berger?

KNICK-KNACKS—

Virginia Bruce is laughing over the excitement caused by her new ruby and diamond ring. She bought it herself. . . . Director Dudley Murphy threw Hollywood's first party to welcome Doris Duke back to the film colony. The Edgar Selwyns, Edmund Goulding and Harry Crocker among those present. . . . You hear swell reports of Nat Pendleton's kid brother, Gaylord, who is playing a comedy reporter in Mauri Grashin's "Two Lost Sheep" over at the Pasadena Workshop theater. . . . And, speaking of brothers, Orville Knapp (Evelyn is his sister) brings his orchestra to the Beverly Wilshire. They're in for a limited engagement. . . . The stars are going for the professional football games. Lots of them saw the Maroons and the Braves play a 14-14 tie at the Glendale stadium. . . . Wonder why Gloria Swanson and Herbert Marshall take those obscure tables in the late spots? If anything, it makes them more conspicuous.

DID YOU KNOW—

That Elissa Landi, of Hollywood's literati, once got the thrill of her life by winning a typing contest?

Helen Vanel in her peasant cottage theater.

Dining there recently, I saw the Grand Duke Dimitri with his American wife, the Princess Ilynska, in a clinging white gown.

Nadia was there looking especially beautiful in a white organdy evening dress with a white ostrich feather cape and red satin sandals, worn on bare feet.

The Countess of Warwick was most impressive in a gown of black tulle with a sable cape.

YARDLEY

William R. Yardley, accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Harry Beans, left by auto for Binghamton, N. Y., where they will visit Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Mathias. Mrs. Mathias was formerly Miss Virginia Yardley. From Binghamton they will motor to Cleveland, where they will spend some time with Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Yardley.

Miss Esther Yardley spent a few days recently with friends in New York City.

Determined that the fans of Bristol shall not go without basketball, several managers of the disbanded Bristol Basketball League met last night and formed the Bristol Community Basketball League. This circuit will be composed of six teams.

The managers have secured the Italian Mutual Aid Hall as their playing court and games will be played on Mondays and Thursdays. The schedule will begin on Monday, November 26. At the present time, the managers are busy signing up players in order to have a complete team by the opening night.

Thomas Juno was appointed president of the circuit with James Dolan as secretary and treasurer. John Boyle, David Landreth, and Francis Byers were named to the arbitration board.

At the meeting only five clubs were admitted to the loop, the sixth team to be entered in a few days. Nevin McGinley is receiving the applications for the opening.
